Art Unit: 2621

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Publication #2001/0016114 to Van Gestel et al in view of US Patent #5,930,450 to Fujita.

I. Preface:

The examiner notes that lines 21 and 22 of claim 1 indicate that the physical addresses of the auxiliary blocks are “within or near” the range of physical addresses used to store the real-time data stream. The examiner maintains that the alternative expression “or near” is a relative expression that, given its normal meaning, broadly encompasses data stored at physical addresses on the same disk; i.e., the physical addresses of a given disk are always, i.e., in a relative sense, “near” each other.

II. The showing of Van Gestel et al.:

As shown in Figure 10, Van Gestel et al discloses a device for recording real-time information that comprises:

a) A recording means (e.g., @117);

b) A control means (@ 125) which includes:

1) Addressing means (@ 137); and

2) Allocation means (e.g., the memory that holds the addressed “map” (i.e. not shown in the Figure))

[Note paragraph 0065]

Art Unit: 2621

III. Differences:

Claim 1 differs from the showing of Van Gestel et al only in that Van Gestel et al does not describe the recited "auxiliary data means".

IV. Obviousness:

Fujita has been cited because, as illustrated via Figure 4, it evidences that it was known in the video recording art for auxiliary "program related" information (e.g., @ 26, 27, 70, and 73) to have been generated (i.e., by an "auxiliary data means") and recorded on the recording medium at physical address locations which lie outside the range of addresses allocated to the real-time video stream (e.g., @ 72), but are located "near" thereto [See Figure 4]; i.e. wherein the "auxiliary information" in Fujita corresponds to management information that is generated by the "auxiliary data means" of the recorder and recorded, with the video data, on the recording medium.

As evidenced by the showing of Fujita, the examiner maintains that it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have "modified" the recording circuitry shown in Figure 10 of Van Gestel et al with "auxiliary data means" for generating "system data" to be recorded on an physical area of the recording medium adjacent/"near" the physical area used to record the video information; e.g., the system information representing that which is conventionally required by a recorder/player to locate and reproduce streams of information corresponding to user selected titles.

3. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Publication #2001/0016114 to Van Gestel et al in view of US Patent #5,930,450 to Fujita for the same reasons that were set forth above for claim 1.

4. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Publication #2001/0016114 to Van Gestel et al in view of US Patent #5,930,450 to Fujita for the same reasons that were set forth above for claim 1. Additionally:

The examiner takes Official notice that it was notoriously well known in the recording art to have used the address "allocation means" to allocate logical and physical addresses so as to avoid bad blocks [e.g., note lines 15-29 on page 1 of the instant specification].

5. Claims 11 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Publication #2001/0016114 to Van Gestel et al in view of US Patent #5,930,450 to Fujita for the same reasons that were set forth above for claim 1.

Art Unit: 2621

6. US Patent #5,715,418 to Atsatt et al. has been cited because it describes details of a conventional logical/physical address space allocation circuitry [e.g., note lines 23-34 of column 5]

7. Claims 2-7, 10, 12, and 14 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to DAVID E. HARVEY whose telephone number is (571) 272-7345. The examiner can normally be reached on M-F from 6:00AM to 3PM.
